Be A Great Teacher

We are emphasizing "teaching" this month at the Henderson Church of Christ. Our education program is always in need of great teachers who are willing to teach our Bible classes. We have many at our congregation who are capable of teaching but are not yet willing to make the commitment to teach. The following information is from a blog by Greg Baird at disciplr.com. Read about it and think about what makes a great teacher, then go to Bill Wade and volunteer to help in our education program. You can make a great difference in the lives of many individuals as a teacher of God's word.

Mr. Green was a great Sunday School teacher. I was in third grade and, frankly, I don't remember a single lesson he taught in class. But he was my best teacher ever! How can that be, you ask? Because Mr. Green had qualities about him that transcended the ability to take a lesson from the curriculum and get me to understand it. Mr. Green was a great Sunday School teacher because he was willing to be and was willing to do what it took to make a difference in my life.

He exhibited 8 Qualities of a Great Sunday School Teacher that I think are present in every great teacher.

The 8 Qualities of a Great Sunday School Teacher:

1) A heart for God

This is where all ministry begins, whether you are teaching Sunday School or leading the entire church. In fact, this is where our ministry should flow from – our deep, sincere, committed heart for God.

2) A love for people

Scripture teaches that the two greatest commands are to love God and to love . . . people (Mark 12:30-31)! Our teaching ought to flow from our love for God but because of our love for people. This means we are not only committed to the lesson, but to actually understanding and building relationships with the people we are teaching.

3) A passion for God's Word

A heart for God and a love for people set the stage for the content of our teaching. And that content needs to be solidly based on Biblical truth. As a Sunday School teacher, it's our responsibility to dig in to God's Word not just to teach our lesson, but to understand it fully and allow it to permeate every part of our life. As we do this, every element of our teaching becomes based on and saturated in the Word.

4) A habit of praying

Oswald Chambers, author of My Utmost For His Highest, said "Prayer does not equip us for greater works, prayer is the greater work." A great Sunday School teacher knows that it is the power of God that brings about transformation, so a deep dependence on God, exhibited through the habit of praying, is essential for a great Sunday School teacher.

5) A commitment to personal growth

Any great teacher is only a great teacher as long as they continue to grow. This is true of a Sunday School teacher, as well. Luke 2:52 says that "Jesus grew in wisdom and stature and in favor with God and all the people." Basically, he grew mentally, physically, spiritually and socially. A great example for any great Sunday School teacher.

6) An ability to teach

Some people have the gift of teaching, while others learn enough to become competent at it. Either way, no one can be a great Sunday School teacher if they don't have the ability to teach!

7) A willingness to prepare

It really doesn't matter if you have an ability to teach if you're not willing to prepare. Sure, great teachers can "wing it" in a pinch, but they know that that's not the way to be effective. Preparation takes time and effort, and great Sunday School teachers are willing to give both.

8) A dedication to the people they teach

One of the things I loved most about Mr. Green was the fact that he was dedicated to us. No, I would not have been able to articulate that in third grade, but I could see it in who he was and what he did. He was there every Sunday, he visited my Little League games, he planned outings for us, he talked with my parents about what we were learning, he was interested in my life outside the classroom, he prayed for and with us often, and so much more. He was dedicated to me and the other guys in the class, and it showed.

Yes, Mr. Green was a great Sunday School teacher. I may not remember the lessons, but he taught me a lot in that third grade Sunday School class. He taught me to love God and love His Word. He taught me to love others and to practice the principles that God wanted me to practice. And, perhaps most of all, he exhibited all the important qualities of a great Sunday School teacher – not because he had to, but because that's who he was. And it forever changed my life for good. And whether it's third grade, junior high or adults you are teaching, practice these 8 Qualities and you'll be a great Sunday School teacher, too!

The word “belong” could be used in several different ways. As a verb, it could mean, “to be rightly placed in a specified position.” An example of this would be when we are looking for to whom or where to lay blame for something that doesn’t go right. Also as a verb, it could mean, “to fit in a specified place or environment.” An example of this could be a stranger that we see and determine that the person doesn’t belong. We need to be extremely aware of that one, as it relates to the environment that we are responsible for helping to create here at church.

Synonyms of the word that belong in this context are: fit in, be suited to, have a rightful place, have a home. Other words such as affiliation, acceptance, association, attachment, integration, rapport and fellowship are also closely associated with the word belong.

We have an opportunity right in front of us to make a positive impact on the lives of numerous college students. I believe that we need to be very deliberate in letting them know and showing them that they belong here with us. Some simple things we can do are: say hello to them, invite them to sit in worship with you, encourage them through simple conversation about the happenings of the day, communicate to them that we enjoy having them worship with us, not being territorial about our “seat” in church when they might get there first. These students, many of them for the first time, are away from the comforts of home. We need to make this feel like a home for them while they are here with us.

Along with this, we have visitors every week. They come here looking for a home, a lot of times. We have the same responsibility towards our visitors. Speak to them. Make them feel welcome and encourage them to come again. Don’t wait for someone on the greeters’ team to do that. Don’t wait for an elder or a minister to welcome them. You need to do this. This is your church home, too and we should all be encouraging, friendly, loving and engaging.

Individually, this is on us all. No one is exempt from this responsibility. Some of us are extroverts and some of us are introverts. However, I believe that we can all do what is within our ability to help create an environment that is warm and welcoming so that those who may come here, whether they be a college student or a visitor will not only want to come back but they will also want to call our church -- home.
